The University of Northern Iowa

On Saturday, July 1, a change took place in Cedar Falls. The institution called the State College of Iowa officially became known as the University of Northern Iowa.

But Cedar Falls residents driving by the campus that Saturday didn't notice any sudden transformation of the familiar buildings. The students and faculty appeared little different on that Saturday than they did the day before.

This official assumption of university status might be compared to an individual's assumption of adult status on his 21st birthday. From the time he is born, a person is constantly growing, developing and changing in appearance and in ways which may not be visibly apparent.

Then, on his 21st birthday, a person legally comes of age and is thereafter called an adult. His friends and relatives will notice no abrupt change in his appearance or actions, but legally he has reached a point in his development at which he is adjudged capable of assuming the expanded responsibilities of an adult.

Growth at UNI. Similarly, UNI has grown constantly since a cold, rainy day in September, 1876, when Prof. D. Sands Wright posed the question "What is grammar?" to 27 shivering students, thus beginning instruction at Iowa State Normal School.

The Iowa State Normal School was established by the General Assembly in 1876. That year four instructors began classes in a renovated home for Civil War orphans. This building, later named Central Hall, was destroyed by fire in July, 1965.

From a single building on a 40-acre campus, the university has grown to include 40 major buildings, a 570-acre campus, 373 faculty members and by this fall, an estimated 8,300 students.

During the first 27 years, the school issued teaching certificates requiring 12 weeks to two years of training. In 1903 a four-year curriculum based on high school graduation and leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts in Education was authorized.

In 1909 the institution was renamed the Iowa State Teachers College and the government of the college, along with that of the University of Iowa and Iowa State University, was vested in the State Board of Regents, a nine-member body appointed by the Governor. Under the new name, the college attained a reputation as one of the nation's top ten institutions for training teachers.

President J. W. Maucker: The man who guided the institution to university status.

On July 5, 1961 the Iowa General Assembly on recommendation of the State Board of Regents changed the name of the school to State College of Iowa and redefined its function.

In recent years, UNI has and is continuing to experience a period of rapid growth not only in its size and facilities, but also in the strength and scope of its programs. It has now reached a point in its development at which it has been officially deemed capable of taking on the responsibilities of expanded educational aims and programs.

At this point, as President J. W. Maucker said, the change from college to university status "is a natural and logical step in the evolution of the institution."

But the process of becoming a university, de-defined as an educational institution of the highest level, like the process of becoming an adult does not begin nor end on the day the institution or individual is officially designated as such. It is a continuous process of maturation.

So Cedar Falls residents did not notice any conspicuous change on July 1. But they have and will continue to witness the growth of a university each day as UNI develops programs and facilities in keeping with the expanded aims of an institution with university status.

University Status and Reorganization

What steps have and will be taken in the process of developing a college into a university?

The first official steps occurred in April, 1966, when the SCI faculty voted to recommend university status to the State Board of Regents; and in October, 1966, when the Board voted to request the legislature to grant university status to the college.

In February, 1967, the Board's recommendation that SCI be given university status came up for action in the Iowa General Assembly. On Feb. 15, the Senate voted 51-7 to change the name and scope of the school; and on Feb. 23, the House of Representatives passed the measure by a 114-4 vote, and sent it to the governor.

On March 10, 1967, Gov. Harold Hughes signed the bill changing the name of SCI to the University of Northern Iowa and expanding the educational aims and programs of the institution, effective on July 1, 1967.

But the official action giving the institution university status was not the final step in UNI's transition from a college to a university.

In May, the State Board of Regents approved a plan to establish five colleges within the University of Northern Iowa effective July 1, 1968.

The plan provides for a College of Humanities and Fine Arts, a College of Business and Behavioral Sciences, a College of Natural Sciences, a College of Education and a Graduate College.

"The rapid growth of the university and the recent action by the General Assembly giving the institution university status, effective July 1, 1967, necessitate a series of steps to modify and strengthen the administrative and departmental organization of the institution," said UNI President J. W. Maucker.

to a 570-Acre Campus

Maucker said anticipation of this need caused the faculty to recommend in January a reorganization of departments within colleges.

"The distinctive character of the plan recommended by the faculty is that, instead of placing all the liberal arts disciplines in one college and establishing one or more separate colleges of applied arts and sciences, it groups the liberal arts and science disciplines into the three broad categories most commonly recognized—humanities, social sciences and natural sciences—and associates the applied fields with the liberal arts areas with which they are most closely akin," Maucker said.

Maucker said the one exception to this generalization is the College of Education which, because of its size and prominence in an institution devoted heavily to teacher education, was recommended for establishment as a separate college.

"Further, the graduate college recommended by the faculty differs markedly from the other four in that it does not have a separate faculty of its own; the pattern here is very similar to that of Iowa City and Ames," Maucker added.

Under the plan, departments included in the College of Humanities and Fine Arts are: art, English language and literature, foreign languages, music, and speech.

Departments in the College of Business and Behavioral Sciences are: business and business education, home economics, social science, and psychology.

The College of Natural Sciences will include: industrial arts and technology, mathematics, and science.

The College of Education will include: the curriculum laboratory, education (including educational psychology and safety education), library science, physical education for men, physical education for women, and teaching.

The Board also approved creation of a department of psychology as the beginning of the reorganization of the department of education and psychology. The university hopes to have the new department functioning in September, 1967.

At present, psychology is taught as part of the offerings of the department of education and psychology. Educational psychology offerings will remain within the department of education.

By Dr. William C. Lang

Since the State College of Iowa has become the University of Northern Iowa, many have asked, "What does the change mean to the institution?" The answer will only become clear with the passing years because universities require time and strong financial support to develop their full potential. However, there are a few changes that will come soon and which will be obvious.

The first obvious change will be a reorganization of the administrative structure. The State College of Iowa grew so rapidly that reorganization became mandatory—whether the institution remained a college or became a university. In fact, plans for changes in the administrative structure of the college would have been presented to the Board of Regents had that group decided not to request transformation of the institution to a university.

Future Directions for Iowa's Newest University

With university status, the institutional departments will be grouped into colleges. After extended discussion, the faculty recommended to the president that five administrative units be created—a College of Humanities and the Fine Arts, a College of Natural Sciences, a College of Business and Behavioral Sciences, a College of Education, and a Graduate College. President Maucker recommended to the Board of Regents that these colleges be established July 1, 1968. The Board approved.

A unique feature of the Colleges proposed by the faculty is that most of the fields, usually referred to as "applied," are incorporated in the college which contains the disciplines upon which they build. Thus industrial arts and technology will be in the College of Natural Sciences; home economics, with its increasing emphasis on the home and total pattern of family living, will be a part of the College of Business and Behavioral Sciences. The departments of physical education, library science, and teaching will be in the College of Education.

The faculty clearly indicated that a change to university status must not result in a decreasing emphasis on quality undergraduate education or in the institution's devotion to education of personnel for the educational systems of the country.

The University intends to fulfill this mandate from the faculty. However, undergraduate education may shrink in relative significance because other responsibilities of the institution as a university will grow. For example, there will be a gradually increasing emphasis on research with an accompanying expansion of graduate enrollments; there will undoubtedly be larger numbers of students in programs not related to preparation for educational positions.

These brief paragraphs suggest but a few of the more obvious changes that university status will bring. More subtle, and in many ways more far-reaching changes will, no doubt, manifest themselves as the institution grows to fulfill its potential as the University of Northern Iowa.

Spring Commencement

Five hundred ninety-four students received the last degrees to be awarded by the State College of Iowa at the 90th annual Commencement exercises held the evening of June 3 at O. R. Latham Stadium. Baccalaureate services were held that afternoon in the Auditorium.

Bachelor of arts degrees were awarded to 526 candidates; 23 received master of arts degrees; 41 were awarded master of arts in education degrees; and specialist in education degrees went to 4 candidates.

President J. W. Maucker presided at the exercises and delivered the charge to the graduates. Candidates for degrees were presented by Dean of Instruction William C. Lang.

The school paid tribute to Lt. Robert J. Hibbs, B.A. '64, who received the Congressional Medal of Honor after he died a hero in Vietnam. Lt. Hibbs' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hibbs of Cedar Falls, were present on the speakers' platform (see story on page 16).

Two UNI alumni now living in Washington, D. C., and Florida were honored for outstanding achievement in their professions. Receiving the traditional Alumni Achievement Awards were Lawrence Edward Dennis, B.A. '40, who has recently been appointed associate executive secretary of the Association for Higher Education (AHE), and Dr. Melvane Draheim Hardee, B.A. '34, professor of higher education at Florida State University.

Baccalaureate speaker was the Rev. Dr. James H. Robinson, founder and executive director of Operation Crossroads Africa, an organization which sponsors American and Canadian college students who work in community self-help projects in Africa. Dr. Robinson spoke on the topic, "Adventure, Alternative to Conformity."

Dennis, who has served as education program advisor for the Ford Foundation in Venezuela since 1965, assumed his new post in Washington, D. C., with the AHE, a 24,000-member department of the National Education Association, in July. Before joining the Ford Foundation, he had worked in a variety of capacities as an educator, administrator and as a journalist.

From 1954 to 1965, Dennis served for seven years as an administrator at Pennsylvania State University, for one year as an associate director of the Peace Corps, and later for three years as executive associate and director of the Commission on Academic Affairs of the American Council on Education.

Dr. Hardee taught in several Iowa high schools for nine years. In 1943, she joined the faculty at Stephens College, Columbia, Mo. In 1948, she became a member of the Florida State University staff. She has been professor of higher education there since 1959.

Dr. Hardee has authored five books and numerous articles and periodicals. Active in professional circles, she has served as secretary-treasurer and president of the American College Personnel Association, vice-president of the Southern College Personnel Association and as a member of the executive council of the Division of Higher Education of the National Education Association.

"Purple and Old Gold" awards for outstanding scholastic and extracurricular achievement went to 14 graduating seniors.

Eleven of the traditional awards, named after the college colors, were awarded for "meritorious scholarship in particular areas of study." Recipients are: Robert Herman Michaelsen of Cedar Falls, business education; Miss Joan Marie Carlson of Des Moines, lower elementary education; Miss Dorothy Anne Kessler of Odebolt, upper elementary education; Phillip Joe Pirages of Cedar Falls, English; James Allen Lockard of Waterloo, foreign languages; Miss Jacquelyn Kay Medin of Whittemore, junior high school education.

Gene Kent Wycoff of Cedar Falls, mathematics; Gary Lloyd Miller of Cedar Falls, music; Lawrence Y. Agodoa of Ghana, Africa, science; John Franklin Stroupe of Dubuque, social science; and Miss Susan Elizabeth Sargeant of Cedar Rapids, speech.

Purple and Old Gold awards for "conspicuous achievement in particular areas" were presented to Mrs. T. Ella Anderson Strother of Waterloo, debate and oratory; Larry John O'Connor of Cedar Falls, extracurricular activities; and Miss Dianne Lou Wedeking of Waverly, music.

Lawrence Dennis, B.A. '40, accepts an Alumni Achievement Award.

The Congressional Medal of Honor

Lt. Robert J. Hibbs, B.A. '64, who received the Congressional Medal of Honor after he died a hero in Vietnam.

The Congressional Medal of Honor is the highest military award bestowed by the United States. Of those who have served in the nation's armed forces, an almost infinitesimal number have received it, and fewer have survived their ordeals of incredible courage to wear it. Only 13 Iowans have won the decoration since the Spanish-American War.

At its 90th annual spring Commencement exercises the University of Northern Iowa paid tribute to a 23-year-old alumnus who received the Congressional Medal of Honor after he died a hero in Vietnam.

Lt. Robert J. Hibbs, B.A. '64, of Cedar Falls is the first and only Iowan to receive the Medal of Honor in the Vietnam War and is thought to be the only graduate of UNI ever to receive this decoration.

He was killed Mar. 5, 1966, near Don Dien Lo Ke, South Vietnam, while leading a 15-man ambush patrol of the Army's 1st Infantry Division.

Lt. Hibbs' patrol discovered a Viet Cong company of 100 men on its way to attack his own unit, the 2nd Battalion, 28th Infantry Regiment. The patrol ambushed the enemy company, killing or wounding half of them.

While returning to his own battalion perimeter, Lt. Hibbs discovered another Viet Cong company about to attack his unit and led a charge surprising the Viet Cong force and completely disrupting its attack.

Later, he returned to the enemy-infested area with a sergeant to recover a wounded member of the patrol. While the sergeant dragged the man to safety, Lt. Hibbs was killed attacking two machine-gun emplacements.

Before he died, he managed to destroy a "starlight scope" — a still-secret device on his rifle which makes it possible to locate an enemy in the darkness — so it would not fall into Viet Cong hands.

UNI President J. W. Maucker told the Commencement audience that a bronze plaque in honor of Lt. Hibbs will be put in an appropriate place in the Union Building presently under construction at the University when the building is completed.

Dr. Maucker introduced Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Hibbs, parents of Lt. Hibbs, who received the nation's highest decoration for valor in his behalf Jan. 26, 1967, in Washington, D.C., from Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor.

On behalf of the University, President Maucker told the audience, "We honor him this evening not only because of the courage he displayed in the face of death, but also because he was a young man who exemplified the traits of character that we are always proud to see in graduates of this institution."

"Many of Lt. Hibbs' instructors here remember him as the kind of student they like to have: bright, open, friendly, well-adjusted and interested; a good, solid student who especially liked history. They report him as self-reliant, industrious and a nice person to have around," he said.

President Maucker then read from Lt. Hibbs' citation. Following the reading he asked Mr. and Mrs. Hibbs to stand with the audience for a moment of silent recognition.

Lt. Hibbs received his degree in three years and had a 3.2 grade average out of a possible 4. While attending the University, he worked 30 hours a week for a grocer. He took one summer off to participate in a social science seminar and tour of Europe. He planned to study law after he had completed his military service.

He entered the army Aug. 23, 1964, and was commissioned a second lieutenant at the Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning, Ga., June 22, 1965. On Mar. 11, 1967, he was inducted into the Officer Candidate School Hall of Fame at Fort Benning.

His parents and a younger brother William (Bill), 18, a student at UNI, and a sister, Betsy, 9, live at 316 W. 18th St., Cedar Falls. An older brother, Dale, 26, is a teacher in Rochester, Minn. Lt. Hibbs was engaged to Lynne Larson of Williamsburg, a student at UNI. She was present when his family received the Medal of Honor.

Lt. Hibbs' parents were honored by the Iowa House of Representatives on May 22 after they were introduced by Speaker Maurice Baringer. The members of the House came to their feet at the request of the speaker, who recalled the words of President Harry Truman: "I would rather receive the Congressional Medal of Honor than be President." The Legislature stood for a minute of silent tribute.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Hibbs, parents of Lt. Hibbs, are introduced by President Maucker.

A Laboratory for Education

By Dr. Ross A. Nielsen

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Nielsen is head of the department of teaching at UNI)

The Malcolm Price Laboratory School, located directly north of the soon-to-be-completed Towers Complex, is administered as one of the major responsibilities of the Department of Teaching.

The Laboratory School named for former UNI President Malcolm Price (1940-50), operates an educational program for approximately 800 pupils in all grades including nursery school, kindergarten, grades one through twelve, and an intermediate class for educable mentally retarded children. The school serves as an attendance center for the Cedar Falls Community School District, and the pupils who attend the school are drawn from the geographic area immediately surrounding the school and from the rural area which lies directly west of the University campus.

The result of this non-selective, but controlled, approach to student admission is the creation of a student body which is quite typical of student bodies in similar communities — a situation which is in marked contrast to most other laboratory schools in the country.

The educational program at both the elementary and secondary levels is quite comprehensive, though the upper four grades (known now as Northern University High School), because of an enrollment limitation of 250 students, do not offer the electives in some subject areas which are available in larger high schools. Throughout the elementary grades and junior high school, however, heavy emphasis is given to enrichment experiences not usually found at those grade levels, and the extra-class high school activity program has been recently expanded to include a chess club, golf, and the 1620 club for students interested in computer programming.

Many of the innovations which are a part of the school's educational program have drawn attention from public schools throughout the state. The mathematics program was one of the first in the Midwest to stress development of modern mathematical concepts from the primary grades through the senior high school. A new language arts guide which identifies language concepts and offers suggestions for the development of those concepts on a K-12 basis has received wide circulation among public schools and has already been adopted by some school systems to give direction to the language arts program within those systems.

Similar K-12 programs are now being developed in science, where key processes and understandings are being identified at each grade level, and in the social studies, where a Ford Foundation grant has given impetus to a new emphasis on non-Western cultures in both the elementary and secondary school.

Involvement in these and other aspects of the school's educational program has helped make it possible for staff members to meet effectively their obligation as consultants to the public schools. During the past year, faculty members have provided leadership in dozens of pre-school workshops and in-service training sessions, have appeared as resource speakers in many county institutes and regional meetings, and have carried out literally hundreds of additional speaking and extension assignments to elementary and secondary schools, service organizations, college classes, and area agencies throughout the Midwest.

In addition to these functions, the Laboratory School also plays a prominent role in the teacher education program of the University. The school serves as one of the ten centers in which the nine-week student teaching experience may be completed, and as the major center for observation and participation experiences for University students enrolled in the teacher education program. In an effort to continue to make these experiences meaningful and effective in the face of the rapid growth of the University's student body, the Laboratory School has turned increasingly to imaginative use of its video tape recording equipment. In addition to these undergraduate programs many graduate students also enroll for credit in advanced laboratory practice at the school, a program which will undoubtedly grow rapidly as the University's graduate program expands.

As public school education continues to change and improve, a new focus for the future of the Laboratory School has received a great deal of deliberation from the school's faculty. While it is probable that no marked changes will take place in the school's broad responsibilities and function, a movement within the educational program toward independent study as a focal point for both its elementary and secondary pupils seems assured. Hopefully, that emphasis will help increase the effectiveness of the Malcolm Price Laboratory School in generating the kind of significant impact and leadership it has so often provided in the past.

"One of the major responsibilities of the Department of Teaching."

Seniors Ray Pedersen and Terry Fox will co-captain an experienced, optimistic University of Northern Iowa football team this fall.

Coach Stan Sheriff's club, with 21 returning lettermen, is looking for a bright season, hoping to pick up where they left off last fall when they massacred nationally ranked North Dakota State 41-14 in the finale.

Sheriff is optimistic. "We will be better than we were in 1966," he said last spring. "We have more depth and some help at key positions where we needed it most. The rest of the league, however, will be much improved. Just how much we've gained will be hard to determine until we get into the schedule."

For the first time in years UNI has depth on both offense and defense with the aid of a fine freshman team and some key junior college transfers. Nine returning offensive starters are back and nine from last year's defense.

Sheriff returns his starting backfield but there may be only two that can save their jobs. Ed Mulholland, who started part of last year's game at quarterback, will have a terrific fight to stave off transfer student Phil Schooley, a smooth throwing 6-3, 205-pound junior. Schooley, two years ago, lettered at Iowa as Gary Snook's back-up man.

Pedersen, likely to be the only two-way player, is a solid candidate for Little All-America honors this fall. A two-time all-conference player, he's rated by the pros as one of the finest linemen in the Midwest. He's 6-3, 218. Ray will bring the pro scouts back to Cedar Falls on the scale of two years ago when they came seeking a look at Randy Schultz.

Tiny Terry Fox, who blistered NDSU in that finale for 319 yards himself, could have a field day this fall with Schooley. One of Sheriff's most enjoyable problems may be deciding where to use Fox, at flanker or running back.

UNI's biggest improvement should be at end and flanker where it was visible in the spring that some talent has arrived at catching the ball, a timely acquisition with Schooley coming on the scene.

The Panthers will play a 10-game schedule this year:

Sept. 9 Northern Michigan U., 7:30 p.m., CDT
Sept. 16 at Western Illinois U., 8 p.m., CDT
Sept. 23 at North Dakota State U., 7:30 p.m., CDT
Sept. 30 North Dakota U., 3 p.m., CDT (State Day)
Oct. 7 Augustana, 1:30 p.m., CDT (Homecoming)
Oct. 14 at Drake U., 1:30 p.m., CDT
Oct. 21 at Morningside, 8 p.m., CDT
Oct. 28 at South Dakota State, 2 p.m., CDT
Nov. 4 South Dakota U., 1:30 p.m., CST (Dad's Day)
Nov. 11 Eastern Michigan U., 1:30 p.m., CST

Alumni and fans should note that the State Day game with North Dakota U. will not start until 3 p.m. CDT. The game was set back one hour and a half to cooperate with a state education convention on campus that day.

Cross Country

Cross country fans could have a field day in 1967 at the University of Northern Iowa.

Coach Jack Jennett tromped through the 1966 season with a sophomore team and they return this fall with additional help from a good frosh crop to paint a pretty picture.

Balance, which won a NCC title two years ago, is back in vogue.

"We will be much better off this fall for I expect our three, four and five men to be more competitive," says Jennett. They should be running more consistently and be in line to push the front runners.

The 1967 UNI cross country schedule:

Sept. 16 at Winona State, 11 a.m.*
Sept. 23 Wisconsin State, 11 a.m.
Sept. 26 Grinnell, 4 p.m.
Sept. 30 at Loras, 11 a.m.
Oct. 3 at Luther, 4 p.m.
Oct. 10 Wartburg, 4 p.m.
Oct. 17 Cornell, 4 p.m.

Oct. 20 Mankato State, 4 p.m.

Oct. 28 at Iowa State, 11 a.m.

Nov. 4 NCC Meet at Fargo, 11 a.m.

Nov. 11 NCAA at Wheaton, Ill., 11:30 a.m.

* 3 Mile race. All others 4 miles.

Golf, Track and Baseball

University of Northern Iowa athletes picked off a pair of North Central Conference Championships last spring, winning titles in outdoor track and golf.

Both clubs, dominated by sophomores, reached peak performances at the crucial time.

Jack Jennett's track team matched its indoor title with a balanced attack and overpowering strength in the hurdle events.

Jennett's hurdle corps was untouchable. They grabbed a 1-2-3 finish in the high hurdles when unbeaten Larry McCready established a new league record in :14.1. He later set a new school mark at :14.0 in the national meet preliminaries. A favorite to win the national title, McCready hit a hurdle and fell in the finals and failed to place.

Chuck Patten's golf team was probably the long shot of the year. Using five sophomores and a senior all the way UNI posted a winning dual season and then took the NCC crown. They came right back, a week later, and won the NCAA Midwest Regional crown with sophomore Dave DeHaven earning medalist honors.

UNI sent, for the first time, a complete golf team to the national college division tournament, and a four-man track contingent on to the nationals.

The track quartet all came home with medals and three school records. Jennett's make-shift 440-yard relay team, using the four men he had with him, surprised with a new school mark and a sixth place finish. The team was comprised of long jumper Bill Rauhauser, hurdler Mark Sanborn, sprinter Bob Ruchti and hurdler McCready. Ruchti and McCready were the only regulars on the relay unit.

Sanborn came back to finish fifth in the 440-yard intermediate hurdles and added a school mark while Ruchti, the school record holder in both the 100 and 220, finished sixth in the 220.

UNI's baseball team finished fifth in the NCC and posted an overall 7-13 record. The tennis team had a 9-9 dual season and placed fifth in the league meet.

The Campus Today

Travel to Colombia

Six University of Northern Iowa administrators and faculty members traveled to Bogota, Colombia, this summer for a three-week seminar conducted July 4-26 as the second part of a joint-seminar program between UNI and the National Pedagogical University of Bogota.

UNI and the Colombian school voluntarily formed an association in 1964 establishing an exchange program with scientific, cultural and educational goals and agreeing to further the aims of the association and the two institutions through the exchange of personnel, experiences, and materials.

The general topic of study for the joint-seminar program was the preparation of secondary school teachers. Discussions and investigations for the July seminar centered on the theme "The University and the Community."

While in Colombia, the UNI educators spent two weeks in Bogota participating in round-table discussion sessions at the university and visiting educational institutions and agencies in the Bogota area.

They spent the final week of the seminar visiting universities located in the Colombian cities of Tunja, Cali and Medellin.

The participants traveled on a U.S. State Department Fulbright-Hayes Grant, and expenses connected with the stay in Colombia were paid by the National Pedagogical University.

UNI participants in the seminar were: President J. W. Maucker; Dr. Wallace L. Anderson, dean of undergraduate studies; Dr. Raymond Schlicher, director of field and extension services; Dr. Ross A. Nielsen, professor and head of the department of teaching; Dr. D. C. Hawley, associate professor and head of the department of foreign languages; and Richard J. Brook, assistant professor of English.

In the first part of the seminar program, 16 educators from the Colombian school spent two weeks on the UNI campus and also visited educational institutions in Chicago and New York in October of 1966.

Dr. Douglas Honored

Dr. Lloyd V. Douglas, head of the business and business education department at the University of Northern Iowa, was honored at a testimonial dinner July 22.

The dinner, in recognition of his many years of dedication to business education on the local, state, and national levels, was sponsored by the Alpha Tau Chapter of Delta Pi Epsilon, national honorary graduate fraternity in business education.

A portrait of Dr. Douglas painted by Mrs. Cloy Kent, a noted Iowa portrait artist, was unveiled at the dinner. The portrait will later be hung in an appropriate place on the UNI campus. Money collected for the testimonial will also be used to establish a "Lloyd V. Douglas Scholarship."

Dr. Douglas has been head of the UNI department of business and business education since it was officially established in 1937.

Foundation Receives Grant

Price Waterhouse and Company, a national public accounting firm of New York City, announced a grant of $1,000 to the SCI Foundation May 18.

The announcement was made by Earl Meikle, B.A. '35, director of personnel for the company in the Midwest.

The purpose of the grant is to provide a fund for fellowships to be used by instructors of accounting at University of Northern Iowa for advanced graduate study.

Dr. Lloyd V. Douglas, head of the UNI department of business and business education, accepted the grant on behalf of the SCI Foundation.

Women's Hours Liberalized

Liberalization of hours for women students living in residence halls at the University of Northern Iowa was announced in May.

Women students other than freshmen but under the age of 21 may determine their own residence hall hours provided the University receives approval from their parents.

For students in this category who do not get parental approval and for freshmen, the hours will be 1 a.m. nightly.

Parents will make known their desires at the time the students enroll. They may withdraw the privilege at any time they wish, according to the new policy.

The announcement was made by UNI President J. W. Maucker. The hours were recommended by the Associated Women Students at the University and approved by Associate Dean of Students Mavis Holmes, the Faculty Senate, and the Student Senate.

In a letter to AWS officers, the UNI President said, "I greatly appreciate the manner in which you and your fellow students in AWS approached this whole matter."

The women's group made their recommendations after a study of the opinions and attitudes of students and parents as well as the practices at other institutions.

Maucker said he joined the AWS in the belief that the students will respond in a responsible manner.

Mrs. O. R. Latham Dies

Mrs. O. R. Latham, 75, wife of the late Dr. O. R. Latham, president of University of Northern Iowa from 1928 to 1940, died of cancer at La-Grange, Ill., April 16, following an extended illness.

She married O. R. Latham in 1913 in Iowa City where both attended the state university. The Lathams then lived in Pomeroy, Ida Grove, and LeMars, Iowa, where Dr. Latham was superintendent of schools. They moved to Duluth, Minn., where he was superintendent of schools and then to Athens, Ohio, where he served as professor of education at Ohio University before coming to Cedar Falls.

Funeral services were held April 18 at the Nottger-Schoof Funeral Home in Cedar Falls. Burial, following the services, was in Cedar Falls' Fairview Cemetery.

Honors Convocation

Some 650 University of Northern Iowa students were honored for scholastic and extracurricular achievements at the All-College Honors Convocation May 17 in the UNI Men's Gymnasium.

UNI's dean of undergraduate studies, Dr. Wallace Anderson, presided at the annual event, and Dr. J. F. Breithaupt, associate professor of psychology, delivered the main address, "Awareness: The Song and the Cardinal."

Recognition was given to presidents of UNI honor societies and student government organizations and special departmental awards were presented to outstanding students.

Music was provided by the University Symphony Orchestra, directed by Donald Wendt, assistant professor of music, and by the Varsity Men's Glee Club, directed by Douglas Reeve, temporary instructor of teaching.

A reception for the honors students, their parents and UNI faculty was held in the Regents Center Lounge immediately following the convocation. Dr. Harold Bernhard, professor of religion and convocations chairman, was in charge of arrangements.

UNI Seminars on India

Eighteen faculty members at the University of Northern Iowa have been selected to study the civilization of India during the 1967-68 academic year in a series of faculty development seminars, an Intercultural Studies Project supported jointly by the Ford Foundation and UNI.

"The purpose of the seminars is not to make Asian specialists but to increase the individual's knowledge in his discipline and to have it play back into his teaching," said Dr. Wallace L. Anderson, dean of undergraduate studies. "This is a means of extending the international dimension into the college program," he said.

Miss Emily Brown, associate professor of history and chairman of the seminar, said that several off-campus consultants will meet with the seminar members throughout the academic year. Participants will pursue their specific interests with regard to Indian civilization within a program of study designed to acquaint them with the common historical, philosophical, social and cultural factors which have shaped Indian institutions, she said.

Alumni Ring Campanile Bells

When the honored classes of 1907, 1917, 1927 and 1942 gathered for their 60th, 50th, 40th and 25th reunions in May, many of the alumni assembled in the new south portico of the Commons to hear the Sunday morning Campanile concert. Despite a gentle shower falling at the time, a number strolled outside along the walks in rain gear or under umbrellas in order to enjoy the concert more fully.

Though carillonneur John Steffa of Cedar Falls gave a fine performance on the original 15-bell instrument, he pointed out that the projected additional 32 bells would have made possible a more varied and enjoyable musical program.

The financing for the $32,000 project to add 32 bells to the Campanile received a further boost by many on-the-spot gifts and indications that each class hoped to raise the $1,000 apportioned to it for a bell.

According to Walter Brown, president of the SCI Foundation, the project is on schedule and only $15,000 in additional gifts is needed between now and Dec. 31, the closing date of the Foundation campaign.
